

Ryan A. Bunch is the Studio Director of Toledo Design Collective, a nonprofit civic design center advancing community-driven planning, urban design, and creative placemaking across Toledo and northwest Ohio. A writer, advocate, and placemaking professional, he has spent his career building partnerships that connect residents, institutions, and public agencies to strengthen neighborhoods, improve quality of life, and drive inclusive community and economic development to better align the neighborhood block with regional strategies. Ryan is a graduate of University of Toledo, certified Futurist, and previously held leadership roles with United Way of Greater Toledo and The Arts Commission.